Stery of Attack Not So, and He Dier With a Lie on His Lips-He Was Once : Conductor on a Boston Railroad-A Hisery of His Antecedents by a Friend.

There remains hardly the shadow of a abt that Guilford G. Phinney, who was ot at 11 Radde place, Brooklyn, at 2 A. M. sterday, died with a lie on his lips. The burglars who he said entered the house ad fired the fatal shot were myths. He killed himself, and all because a mind ready diseased had completely given way efore the idea that his aspiration for the and of Miss Carrie Carpenter was opposed v her parents. The only mystery which surrounds the ase now is the question, "What disposition id he make of his gold watch and other id he make of his gold watch and other ewelry on that fatal night?"

All else has been discovered by an Evening World reporter who visited the scene of the shooting this morning.
De Witt C. Carpenter, with whom Phinney was boarding, and love for whose daughter Carrie was the cause of young Phinney's tragic end, was at home and invited the reporter into the house, where the innocent cause of the tragedy was found in the front parlor.

She is a rather prepossessing girl of seventeen years, a brunette, o slight and willowy form. Her face bore some trace of the trial she had lately undergone, but she appeared she had lately undergone trace of the trial she had lately undergone. quite cheerful and was certainly vory volu-ble, telling her story without feeling. Mr. Phinney was in love with her, but had not asked the consent of her parents to their inion.

"I thought it very queer," Mr. Carpenter thought it very queer. Air, Carpener here said, "that Phinney never broached the subject of his love for my daughter to me, and I determined that I should know more of him and his antecedents before I gave away my only child to him.

"I made up my mind to this because, though he was a good-hearted, cheerful fellow, he was erratic. Why, it was only Monday last that he said he was going to Cape Horn."

Yes, and I persuaded him not to go." put GUILFORD G. PHINNEY. "I told my wife," Mr. Carpenter proceeded, "of my determination regarding the possible marriage of Carrie with Phinney, and I understand the young fellow overheard us talking it over. Nothing was ever said by us about Phinney ever having been married." Concerning the events of Tuosday night Miss Carpenter said that when she saw Phinney packing his valies she was afraid that he was going away, as he had threatened, and she taxed him with having that intention.

She said that he laughed at the idea and opened the valies for her inspection. It contained nothing but his clothing, which he said he was going to take to the launity.

He went out, and was gone about half an hour. When he returned he was in a profuse perspiration, and Miss Carpenter asked him why he was so flushed. He replied that he had run to catch the train.

From this fact it is surmised that Phinney had run over to the Saratoga avenue station of the Rapid Transit road and rode down to

of the Rapid Transit road and rode down to Flatbush avenue, where he had expressed his valise, containing his watch and other jewelry, to either his brother or sister, and hastened back.

Beiore retiring that night Phinney had been despondent and told Miss Carpenter that he was sure that something dreadful was to occur to him before morning.

To-day the young lady said that he had frequently had such fits of despondency, when he would make her promise that she would let nobody separate them.

Though she gave the alarm at the time of the shooting, Miss Carpenter said that she did not compose herself sufficiently to go down to see the wounded man until after the ambulance surgeon arrived. She then kissed him at his request and he made her mother promise to "take good care of Carrie."

The pistol with which he was shot was only two feet away from his bead as he lay on the floor, and was of precisely the same pattern as one found in Ph nney's trunk.

To clinch the suicide theory, Augustus Blazo, a builder who resides on Decatur yeane. near kingston avenue, tells this

"After this I refused to have any more to do with him in a business way, and he went to work for a milkman downtown."

Mr. Blazo says that Phinney had not more thau $1,000. He banked with the Provident Savings Bank, of Boston.

The stories to the effect that Phinney had $50,000 insurance on his life, Mr. Blazo savs. are wild rumors. He had about $8,000, and belonged to but goven secret societies—the Masons, A. O. U. W., Royal Arcanum, Red Men, Elks, Select Knights and Order of Tonti.

The Masons and Ancient Order of United Workmen have taken charge of the funeral arrangements.

The brother of the dead man has been no-tified and is expected to arrive to-day.

Error-Threats of a Prosecution for Conspiracy.

Col. Nicholas Smith, son-in-law of the late Horace Greeley, and of recent notoriety as a professional best man, was a conspicuous figure among the prisoners in the Yorkville Police Court this morning.

The Colonel was arrested at the Hotel Hamilton, in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, on a warrant sworn out by the proprietor, John Allen, charging him with obtaining board and accommodations by false pretenses. His arrest, published exclusively in this morning's World, caused no little agitation in social circles.

Col. Smith made an effort to appear at his ease in court, but was noticeably nervous. His long, gray, curly hair was dishevelled, his face was unshaven, and his Piecadilly collar, white necktie and linen cuffs were soiled. He wore a light cheviot coat and vest and light striped pantaloons.

While the Colonel was waiting to be arraigned an Eveniso World reporter asked him if he had read the published story of his arrest and his dealings with Landlord

Allen.

He replied in the negative and asked the reporter for a copy of the paper.

His hand trembled perceptibly and his face flushed while reading the story, and when he had concluded he remarked that Mr. Allen was somewhat vindictive.

"I claim that my arrest and confinement in a cell over night is an outrage. Mr. Allen has taken advantage of the law to punish me for something for which I am not responsible, and before he gets through with this matter he'll find out that he has made a mistake." "Is it true that you have money due you from the sale of property in Virginia?" in-quired the reporter. "I so stated to Landlord Allen, and it is true that I have an interest in the sale to which I referred."

Then the Colonel added: "I have not been permitted to communicate with my lawyer nor any of my acquaintances, and the law is being used to persecute and humiliate

RESPITED FOR FOUR WEEKS.

Murderer Maxwell's Case Decided by Gov. Morehouse.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

St. Louis, July 12.-Gov. Morehouse has respited Maxwell, the murderer of Preller, for twenty-eight days. A commutation of the sentence was refused.

The death watch had been placed on Maxwell at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. He received the news from Jefferson City this morning with evident satisfaction, but maintained his characteristic sang froid.

JOSIE SHEPHARD'S CASE COMPLETED. Additional Evidence in Hand Makes as Invincible Argument for His Return. Despite the strenuous objections of Supt. E. D. Carpenter, the authorities of the New York Juvenile Asylum having, as stated yesterday, courteously furnished The Evening terday, courteously furnished The Evening World with the information contained in the records of the institution regarding the boy Joseph Shephard, although the transcript taken did not throw any new light upon the case, all further legal proceedings looking towards an examination of the books of the institution will be suspended for the present.

The case is now essentially complete, and the evidence which can be placed before the committee at its next meeting relative to the ability of the friends and relatives of the boy to support him and bring him up will no doubt surprise a good many of the members of the Board who have been accustomed to rely entirely upon Mr. Carpenter for their information upon these points.

It is claimed that cases like that of Joseph Shephard are never dec ded except upon the Shephard are never dec ded except upon the fullest investigation of the facts, and that no child is ever apprenticed to a master in the West when it has friends in this part of the country who are able and willing to care for country who are able it properly.

The meagreness of the information contained in the transcript from the books of the institution about Jose Shephard shows what sort of evidence the committee had to rely on in deciding that case, the fabrications of the Carpenter's imagination presumably supports. on in deciding that case, the fabrications of Mr. Carpenter's imagination presumably supplying the apparent facts necessary to make out a case against the relatives of the boy when they tried to have him brought back to

For instance, Mr. Carpenter represented to the committee that the child had been utterly abandoned, when he must have known perfectly well that its grandmother was visiting it all the time and had repeatedly entreated the officers of the institution to per mit her to take the child away. Nor did it appear that it was by accident that the child was not reclaimed by its relatives hefore it was placed in the hands of Mr. Jenkins. of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children, who had it committed to the asylum, although such was the case. All this and much more too is set forth in

All this and much more too is set ofth in the additional affidavits, which have been prepared through the efforts of Tag Evening World and which will show conclusively that the only just and humane thing the committee can do is to order the return of the boy to this city and his restoration to his friends. It is simply a case where a body of intelli-gent and well-meaning gentlemen have been led into error by the misrepresentations of a trusted officer, whose own admissions show that he has been either too lazy to obtain correct information regarding matters in-trusted to his care, or has wilfully misrepresented the facts for some reason best known to himself. Prom information already in the possession of The Evening World it is safe to say that the public need not remain much longer in ignorance of the real cause.

Recorder Smyth They Plead Not Guilty and Go Back to Await Trial.

District-Attorney Fellows Will Push the Cases.

When THE EVENING WORLD's cases against the policy dealers were called in Recorder Smyth's branch of the Court of Special Sessions this forenoon at 11 o'clock there was scarcely standing room.

The Recorder took his seat five minutes after the bour, and the court was duly opened by the usual " Hear ye," &c.

The Court read a newspaper while several prisoners were called to plead, and then Clerk Hall called out the names of Charles Clerk Hall called out the names of Charles Siebert, of Canal street and West Broadway; Henry Smith, of 186 Greene street; Frank Collins, of 233 South Fifth avenue; William McCurdy, of Washington and Watts streets, and George Brown, of 41 Thompson street, all charged with keeping policy shops. As their names were called all, with the exception of Siebert, appeared before the bar of the Court and bleaded "not guilty," as expected by every person present.

bar of the Court and pleaded "not guilty," as expected by every person present.

The four other policy dealers immediately faced about and slunk out of the court-room.

Lawver Coman appeared for them.

When the cases were called Col. Fellows came in and took his seat beside the Recorder. To an Evening World reporter he said he would push the cases to an early trial, and the Recorder had informed him that he would give his attention to the fiving that he would give his attention to the fixing of a date for the trials as soon as he could dispose of the prison cases now before him. Hiebert will appear to-morrow to plead, and his case will take the same course as the others. All the accused per ons are under bonds to appear for trial when wanted.

A SUSPICIOUS FIRE. The Police Dan't Sen Why It Broke Out in the Empty Room Over Goldberg's Store-The police think there is something very aspicious in a fire that occurred on the top floo of the three-story brick building, 438
Eas. Houston street, this morning.
Joseph Goldberg has a tailor shop on the ground floor, and the two upper stories are unoccupied.

When a policeman passed the building at 7 o'clock everything was all right and the doors were locked. In fifteen minutes afterwards fire was observed issuing from the empty rooms on the third floor.

The loss was $500 to the building and $100 An investigation will be made by Assistant Fire Marshal Frank.
